

Plants are thriving in my home write the wealthiest Americans can only grow stacks of gold

Now, during Americas' loveliest time, I found a small forest growing in my living room

Which isn't all true because the poorest people in rural Vietnam live their whole lives in forests

Because of this, I considered access to plants a privilege that only the rich can afford

Maybe plants pop up where people need them most

How Plants
Come to Life

Plants are one of the most basic parts of nature

They look like they can pop up anywhere on the Earth

But as humanity advances, plants seem to be a luxury

Only accessible by man-made parks

40.7812°N 73.9665°W